

Who Am I? Bible Edition

5–10 minutes • Ages 6–12 • No materials needed

Need a quick Bible game that gets the whole class involved? In Who Am I?, kids listen to clues and try to guess which Bible character you're describing. You don't need to prepare anything; five ready-to-play rounds are included.

How to Play

1. Explain the game. Tell the kids you'll read three clues about someone in the Bible. Their job is to figure out who it is.
2. Read the clues. Pause for guesses after each clue. If nobody gets it, read the next one.
3. Talk about the answer. Once the kids guess the character, ask the question under The Bigger Picture. Give the kids a chance to answer before moving on.
4. Keep playing. Continue through all five rounds. Everyone can keep guessing, even if they get an answer wrong.

Adapt It

For younger kids Read all three clues before asking kids to guess. This gives them more information to work with.

For older kids Let kids guess after each clue. See who can recognize the Bible character using fewer clues.

Create your own rounds Choose a Bible character from a story your class has studied. Write three clues, starting with a less obvious detail and ending with an easy one. Add a question and answer about the character for The Bigger Picture.

Keep in Mind

Some kids will recognize the answer immediately, while others may need all three clues. Give everyone a chance to think and guess before moving on to the next character. Once the kids know how the game works, let a volunteer read the clues for the next round.
